WCRE ADDS EXPERIENCED POLITICAL CONSULTANT, FORMER COUNCILMAN

David Spector to Enhance Engagement with Local Communities and Leadership

November 13, 2018 - Marlton, NJ - Wolf Commercial Real Estate (WCRE) is pleased to announce the hiring of David Spector as Director of Community Relations. Spector brings nearly a decade of community engagement and public service to expand the reach and strengthen the bonds with municipalities and businesses throughout New Jersey.

As Director of Community Relations, David will work closely with elected officials, economic development offices and community leaders to strengthen WCRE's connections within the various regions where the firm does business.

An experienced community relations professional, Spector has served as a Town Councilman in Bellmawr, NJ and was an Eagleton Fellow at Rutgers University. David started his career in politics working on a number of different campaigns at all levels of government on behalf of Chairmen Donald Norcross and James Beach. He was also an aide for Senator Fred Madden, Assemblyman Paul Moriarty and Assemblywoman Gabriela Mosquera, where he spearheaded communications, social media and constituent relations. Additionally, Spector has built close relationships with a variety of community organizations throughout Southern New Jersey including the Jewish Community Relations Council, Community Planning & Advocacy Council, American Red Cross and much more.

“As a firm that works closely with a wide variety of communities and businesses, we are excited to be partnering with someone like David who can help our clients to build stronger relationships with their neighbors throughout the Garden State,” said Jason Wolf, Founder and Managing Principal of WCRE. “David brings WCRE strong relationships with leaders throughout the region as well as the ability to establish new ones. We are very excited to bring our clients these new possibilities.”
